

Sui Validator CLI

The Sui CLI validator command provides command-level access to validator features of the Sui network.

Typing `sui validator --help` into your terminal or console displays the following information on available commands.

The following examples demonstrate some of the most often used commands.

Toggle output

Beginning with the Sui v1.24.1 release, the `--gas-budget` option is no longer required for CLI commands.

Toggle output

Toggle output

Each command has its own help section. For example `sui validator report-validator --help` will display the following prompt:

Commands

Typing `sui validator --help` into your terminal or console displays the following information on available commands.

The following examples demonstrate some of the most often used commands.

Toggle output

Beginning with the Sui v1.24.1 release, the `--gas-budget` option is no longer required for CLI commands.

Toggle output

Toggle output

Each command has its own help section. For example `sui validator report-validator --help` will display the following prompt:

Examples

The following examples demonstrate some of the most often used commands.

Toggle output

Beginning with the Sui v1.24.1 release, the `--gas-budget` option is no longer required for CLI commands.

Toggle output

Toggle output

Each command has its own help section. For example `sui validator report-validator --help` will display the following prompt:

Help

Each command has its own help section. For example `sui validator report-validator --help` will display the following prompt: